Claim Rejections - 35 USC § 103

1. The following is a quotation of 35 U.S.C. 103(a) which forms the basis for all obviousness rejections set forth in this Office action:

(a) A patent may not be obtained though the invention is not identically disclosed or described as set forth in section 102 of this title, if the differences between the subject matter sought to be patented and the prior art are such that the subject matter as a whole would have been obvious at the time the invention was made to a person having ordinary skill in the art to which said subject matter pertains. Patentability shall not be negated by the manner in which the invention was made.

2. Claims 1-6 are rejected under 35 U.S.C. 103(a) as being unpatentable over Tatebayashi Pat. No. 4,386,042 in view of applicant's disclosed prior art.
3. Tatebayashi discloses the hardening of a plastic film (col. 3, lines 31-37), placing the film in the cavity (col. 5, lines 3-20), injecting a molten plastic material into the cavity to attach with the film (col. 5, lines 27-31) and removing the object from the cavity. Tatebayashi discloses the film and the injected material as being the same plastic material (col. 5, lines 35-37) and the article formed being transparent (col. 1, lines 16-20). Applicant discloses that conventional dual injection molding methods are known for transparent plastic panels combined with a colored plastic body. It would have been obvious to a person of ordinary skill in the art to place the molded object of Tatebayashi into a second cavity and injecting a second molten plastic material into the cavity so as to form the composite article disclosed by Tatebayashi at col. 1, lines 15-27 since these second injection steps are conventional for forming composite articles such as dust covers for record players. The turning of the mold to locate the second cavity in a position corresponding to the first object is conventional in dual injection molding, such as conventional rotary molding apparatus, which has not been shown by applicant.
